Holocaust-Denial Literature: A Sixth Bibliography

John A. Drobnicki
York College/CUNY

This bibliography is a supplement to five earlier ones that were published in the March 1994, December 1996, September 1998, December 2000, and September 2002 issues of the Bulletin of Bibliography, which has since ceased publication. During the intervening time, Holocaust denial has continued to be discussed in both the scholarly literature and the mainstream press, especially during the trial resulting from the libel lawsuit filed by David Irving against Deborah Lipstadt and Penguin Books, and his subsequent appeal of that verdict. The Holocaust deniers, who prefer to call themselves “revisionists” in an attempt to gain scholarly legitimacy, have refused to go away and have continued to take advantage of new media.

Holocaust denial is a body of literature that seeks to prove that the Jewish Holocaust did not happen. Although individual deniers may have different motives and beliefs, they all share at least one point: that there was no systematic attempt by Nazi Germany to exterminate European Jewry. Hence they claim that the Holocaust is a hoax perpetrated by Jews (Zionists) in an attempt to blackmail the rest of the world for sympathy, money, and legitimacy for the state of Israel.

This bibliography includes both works about Holocaust denial and works of Holocaust denial. Although Holocaust deniers write in many languages, the scope of this project (as with the five previous ones) has been limited to works in English. Because of space constraints, URLs are provided for only some of the materials that are available online—most newspapers (including college publications) now have websites that make the full text of their articles available for various periods. Many of the articles dealing with David Irving and/or his lawsuits are available on the Holocaust Denial on Trial website, www.hdot.org, as well as on David Irving’s own website, www.fpp.co.uk. The Nizkor Project (see www.nizkor.org/) and The Holocaust History Project (www.holocaust-history.org) remain invaluable resources for information on Holocaust denial and deniers.

While this bibliography has been divided into many subject areas, it is acknowledged that many of the entries cross several categories, especially the works in the “General Overview” section. Materials regarding David Irving’s lawsuit against Lipstadt and Penguin Books are included under “European and Russian/Soviet Deniers,” since Irving is a British national and the trial (and leave-to-appeal hearing) took place in London. Articles about the legal issues involved in the trial are included under “Legal Aspects of Holocaust Denial.”

As the sixth part of an ongoing research project, this bibliography does not include items that already appeared in previous installments of the bibliography, regardless of how important and useful they remain. In general, this sixth bibliography contains items that were published since 2002, or older materials that were missed in previous bibliographies.
